To invent something truly groundbreaking, to solve previously unsolvable problems, you can't think in a box. That's why the men and women of NSA are encouraged to take playtime just as seriously as work time.

They create music and paintings, run marathons and climb mountains, read academic journals and Top 10 fiction.

So when it's time to get back to the office, the juices are flowing, the dots are connecting, and the team is ready to solve complex problems ... all in support of national security.

Do more. Be more. At NSA.
