The recent controversies of business ethics in the media, and the mission of Texas State to educate students about ethical behavior, Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) members Sarah Fletcher, Lauren Van Manen, and Maggie Watson decided to contribute to the education of the Texas State campus by presenting a SIFE project entitled “Personal Principles”. “Personal Principles”, which was created this year, takes a look at ethics from the classroom to corporate America. The SIFE students were welcomed by several campus organizations including Alpha Kappa Psi and Chi Omega. “Personal Principles” and several other SIFE projects work to inform students and community members alike about the importance of ethics and finance for long-term success.
