7th Annual Texas Music History

This was one of our most successful concerts ever, both in terms of the cultural significance of the musicians and their amazing performances, and the attendance, a standing room only capacity crowd, the great majority of which were students. Texas Music History Unplugged is an ongoing lecture series sponsored by the Center for Texas Music History, the Department of History, and several other campus organizations. The 7th Annual Texas Music History Unplugged concert took place on April 24, 2007. This year’s concert featured Marcia Ball, Ruben Ramos, Barbara Lynn, Randy Rogers and Colin Brooks, who shared the stage in an intimate semi-circle. They performed individually and together, and discussed how Texas music reflects the history and cultural diversity of the American Southwest. The concert was held at the LBJ Student Center Ballroom which was filled to capacity with the great majority of attendees being Texas State students.
