
Department of Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture at Texas State offers students a quality education with personal attention. Students enjoy a student-centered atmosphere where their education and development are important. Students learn in well-equipped classrooms and laboratories in addition to our 4,200-acre Freeman Ranch and 17-acre horticulture center. These facilities provide plenty of opportunities for students to learn and apply their knowledge to real world situations.

Areas of Study

In the Department of Agriculture at Texas State there are six-degree options from which to choose. The options cover a variety of career areas and through proper course selection can prepare students for careers that suit their interests. The demand for graduates in all areas of agriculture is greater than the number of graduates, so all of these options will prepare students well for exciting and rewarding careers. Areas of study include:

- ✓ Agribusiness Management and Operations
 - Management Specialization
 - Systems Management Specialization
 - Horticultural Business Specialization
- ✓ Animal Science
 - Pre-Veterinary Medicine
- ✓ General Agriculture
- ✓ General Agriculture with Teacher Certification

Faculty

The faculty members in our department are all dedicated to teaching and student development. Students' interactions with faculty extend well beyond the classroom in the Department of Agriculture. Our students have a variety of opportunities to interact with faculty members and develop personal relationships with each one of them. Students are assigned a faculty advisor when they arrive on campus to help them plan their education and professional development at Texas State.

Student Organizations

Students have countless opportunities to become actively involved in campus organizations that assist in the development of their leadership skills. In addition to the Agriculture Ambassadors, Collegiate FFA, Delta Tau Alpha, Hortus Colere (Horticulture Club), Pi Alpha Zeta, Pre-Veterinary Society, Horseman's Association and Rodeo Club sponsored by the department, students can participate in some of the more than 200 student organizations across campus.

Texas State University

Texas State is a comprehensive, culturally diverse university offering undergraduate and graduate instruction to citizens across Texas as well as those from other states and nations. It was ranked No. 25 in the nation on Money Magazine's "best buy" among public universities for in-state students during 1997-98, the only Texas school named. It was also named one of the 12 "hot spots" to go to school in Newsweek's 1998 Kaplan college issue.
