What to do when you receive a report of sexual misconduct

Before a Complainant reveals any information to a responsible employee, the employee should ensure that the Complainant understands the employee’s reporting obligations - and, if the Complainant wants to maintain confidentiality, direct the Complainant to confidential resources.

- Counseling Center
- Student Health Center
- Texas State University Police Department
- San Marcos Police Department
- Hays-Caldwell Women’s Center
- Attorney for Students

Provide a hard copy, or include as attachment in email, the Sexual Misconduct Policy which explains the process and rights of all parties http://www.txstate.edu/oea/contentParagraph/09/content_files/file/document/TSUS%20Sexual%20Misconduct%20Policy%20and%20Procedures.pdf

A reporting web line has been created to submit reports of sexual misconduct. To report an incident, please visit: https://tim.txstate.edu/sexualmisconductwebline/

Document additional information regarding the reported incident

Explain the investigatory process to the Complainant
- Title IX coordinator needs to be notified
- Investigation will occur
- Finding will be issued
- Possible sanctions will occur

Explain the options for reporting to law enforcement authorities, whether on campus or local police

Discuss confidentiality standards and concerns with the Complainant and advise that confidentiality may impact the University’s ability to investigate fully

An individual may also report an incident of sexual misconduct to the University Police Department

Discuss with the Complainant, as appropriate, possible interim accommodations/measures that would make the Complainant feel safe

- Campus no-contact orders
- Reassignment of housing or work assignments
- Temporary withdrawal or suspension from the Component
- Escort or transportation assistance
- Modification of class schedules
- Restrictions from specific activities or facilities
