Students experience the magic of Scheherazade – October 11 some 100 Texas State "Intro to Fine Arts" students attended the Austin Symphony's special performance of Rimsky-Korsakov's Scheherazade. The evening began with a "Beyond the Score" dramatization (created for the Chicago Symphony) of the making of this famous piece. Actors portrayed the composer and the title character, while the orchestra demonstrated excerpts from the piece. The latter portion of the evening consisted of a full performance of this epic work by the Austin Symphony, conducted by Maestro Peter Bay. The students' adventure was organized by music instructors of Intro to Fine Arts, led by Regents Professor Ian Davidson.

DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE AND DANCE

The department's production of Rent was completely sold out for its seven-show run.

The theatre program is discussed in this Huffington Post article.

Eugene Lee received a rave review in the Atlanta Journal Constitution for his performance in August Wilson's How I Learned What I Learned; it was also the lead photo for American Theatre Onstage photo:

"And in this remarkable True Colors Theatre production starring the powerhouse American actor Eugene Lee, you hear it all — untamed and uncensored. . . . But a Wilson autobiography would be nothing without a strong performer. And Lee captures the playwright's intellectual vigor, his irony and sarcasm, his physicality and movement in sharp and telling detail. It's a very fine performance — smart without being imitative."
