A little history from our President and Owner:

This might seem like a general laborer position on the surface but really is much more. We are a general contractor building multi-million dollar water and wastewater treatment plants. All of the items to be organized and stored relate directly to this field. I started my career as a laborer and worked my way up. After receiving my civil engineering degree at UH in 1978, I continued to work in the field acquiring more experience. When I started my company in 1991, the prior field experience was invaluable to the success of R.P. Constructors, Inc. Yes, there are manual labor chores involved, but also the ability to learn about a construction company.
