The deadline for managers and employees to complete the performance review process is approaching. The performance review is the last step in the performance cycle for June 2016 through May 2017. All performance reviews must be complete by May 31, 2017, in order for employees to be eligible for merit consideration.

In order to help you and your staff succeed in the review process, more resources are available in our Tools and Resources website of Performance Management.

Open Labs are continuing through May. You can register online through the SAP Portal and click on the Training and Development tab. The labs are located in the Course Catalog under Organizational Excellence.

If you have any questions or are in need of more training, please call 5.2557 or write to performanceemgmt@txstate.edu.
6 steps in the PERFORMANCE REVIEW PROCESS

1. MANAGER ADDS JOB DUTIES
   - print or save the employee job duties selected in the employee performance plan and add the same job duties to the performance review
     (keep in mind that this step is similar to step 1 of the performance planning process)
   - job duties will then be sent to the employee to self-assess their performance

2. EMPLOYEE SELF-ASSESSES
   - assess each goal, job duty, competency and behavior by selecting the appropriate rating
   - send to manager for assessment

3. MANAGER PERFORMS ASSESSMENT
   - remember to ask for feedback from employees’ team members
   - also consider badges or notes received in the system
   - review the notes you made throughout the year

4. 1:1 MEETING
   This step is a sit down session between manager and employee to discuss the employee’s performance review.

5. 2ND LEVEL MANAGER REVIEWS
   This step requires the 2nd level manager to review the employees’ performance review and send back electronically to the employee.

6. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS
   - employee acknowledges and signs the performance review
   - manager acknowledges and signs the performance review
   - 2nd level manager acknowledges and signs the performance review

COMPLETE!
We’ve updated the Tools and Resources website of Performance Management. This site provides resources for the three phases of the new Performance Management process.

To help you complete the review or assessment phase, many resources are available to help you through each step. We’ve even added some resources in Spanish!

Are you in SAP all day long?

NetID 2-Step’s Remember me for 9 hours streamlines your workday

If your daily business tasks require you to be in the SAP Portal, SAP Business Client, or other NetID 2-Step services several times a day, the Remember me for 9 hours feature is just for you.

Here’s how it works:

During log in, when you get to the NetID 2-Step screen, click the checkbox next to Remember me for 9 hours.

If you have automatic push or call turned on, cancel the login request, click the checkbox to remember you, and proceed with the push or call.

For the rest of your workday, you’ll bypass the need to use NetID 2-Step in that web browser accessing that specific service. It’s that simple!

LEARN MORE
There are times when we see our family members and friends watching too much TV or eating pizza too often, and we want to encourage them to walk more or eat healthier. Although we might have good intentions, these suggestions aren’t always welcome. So, what should we keep in mind about communicating health promotion messages to others?

There are positive messages that we can communicate verbally and nonverbally to encourage others to be healthier:

Expressing Positive Emotions
“I love you and want you to be healthier”

Stating Importance
“exercise will help you manage your BP; it’s important for your health”

Making Suggestions
“check out this great recipe in this whole foods cookbook”

Modeling
“I am going for a walk after dinner; come with me”

Praise
“I love the salads you have been making”

When we communicate these positive messages to others, it makes them feel supported and promotes healthy behaviors and relationship quality.

On the other hand, some of us might choose more coercive messages, which are associated with less healthy, and sometimes even unhealthy, behaviors. If we don’t want our efforts to backfire, we should limit the following messages:

- guilt induction (“You can eat that, but you’ll feel bad about it later”)
- expressing negative emotions (“I am angry about your unhealthy choices”)
- invoking obligation (“You need to make changes for this family”)
- telling/demanding (“You better exercise today”)
- withdrawal (“I don’t want to watch your unhealthy behaviors”)

When it comes to health promotion, the most effective messages are those to which others will be receptive. So, it’s important know your audience, and to communicate your support to them. We all need a little push to be healthier sometimes, but, as my mom says, “you can catch more flies with honey than vinegar.”

Michele coordinates the academic testing for students with disabilities and is an invaluable employee. TREC is one of Texas State’s most complex offices because of matters of security and compliance. In a position which supports testing for students referred by the Office of Disability Services (OSD), Michele is conscientious, cooperative and unusually careful in coordinating between her student clients and faculty.

She is personally committed to insuring that the needs of the students are balanced with the concerns of the faculty, insuring rigid adherence to the accommodations provided to the students and simultaneously insuring that the tests are handled securely and are carefully administered so that both sets of clients are pleased with the result.

Michele interacts effectively with the faculty and academic departments to insure that examinations are returned promptly. She has also exhibited a professional interest in the American with Disabilities Act, and works closely with her director to review and make sure that Texas State’s practices and policies are compliant, clear, efficient and consistently implemented.

Michele attends national conferences where issues related to the implementation of the American with Disabilities Act are carefully and clearly delineated. She assumes the responsibilities of the director when needed, maintaining regular contact with her superiors.

Michele is hard-working, courteous, and innovative. These traits have minimized concerns and complaints from both faculty and students.
