Major of the Month: Communication Studies

Communication Studies explores the ways that people communicate everyday. Students “investigate communication processes as they occur within and among individuals, groups, organizations, and societies.” Students can choose between five different major specializations: Communication Studies (general), Interpersonal Communication, Organizational Communication, Persuasive Communication, and Teacher Certification in Communication Studies. Students may choose to have an internship to help gain hands-on experience as well as course credit toward their Texas State degree.

Because Communication Studies encompasses multiple types of human communication, students find employment in many diverse fields, including business, media, and government and social services. Sample job titles include Advertising Manager, Insurance Agent, Recruiter, Production Assistant, Counselor, and Lobbyist.
