One World, Many Worlds: Composing the Americas

The 42nd Annual Conference of the Southwest Council of Latin American Studies
Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic
March 11-14, 2009
On behalf of the Executive Board of the Southwest Council of Latin American Studies (SCOLAS), welcome to the 42nd Annual Conference! The theme of the 2009 SCOLAS Conference “One World, Many Worlds: Composing the Americas” seems particularly appropriate at this time, as international understanding, cooperation and consensus are sought in response to the challenges we all face.

At this conference, we are delighted to have presenters and panels from many countries and disciplines who will reconsider the ways that multiple influences—cultures, races and languages—have interwoven to create the worlds that collectively we know as the Americas. What have been the gains, what have been the costs, of this mixing and merging? What lies ahead for the many strands that, together, shape and delineate the Americas in an environment with eroding borders but growing psychological barriers? Our conversations over the next several days will help us to develop answers to these questions. Moreover, on Friday night, at the keynote, we look forward to Ambassador Flavio Dario Espinal’s address “Recomposing Consensus in the Americas” which will help us to look forward, reflecting on what the future might hold.

On a personal note, I am eternally grateful to Elizabeth Willingham for her help in organizing the Literature panels, to Joan Supplee for her invaluable help throughout the process and to the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, for its continued support.

In addition to contemplating the Americas, we hope that you also will spend time exploring the Santo Domingo. While you are enjoying the tropical weather and change of pace, you also can note the historic firsts that the location reflects, including Columbus’ landing on his first American voyage. Further, within the charming Ciudad Colonial, the initial successful settlement of Europeans from the Iberian Peninsula, you will discover the hemisphere’s earliest paved street (Calle de las Damas), its original hospital (Hospital San Nicolás de Bari), and initial cathedral (Catedral Primada de América).

We welcome you to Santo Domingo and SCOLAS’ 42nd Annual Congress and look forward to a wonderful experience, Janet Adamski

Also, please mark your calendars for Santa Fe, March 2010!

Rediscovering the Americas in a “Post-American (?) World”

As most of us are experiencing personally as well as professionally, the global economic crisis has tremendous potential to rearrange “truths,” not to mention retirement plans. Books that prognosticate on a “Post-American World” are spending months on the New York Times best-sellers list. These changes have the potential to affect all sorts of relationships, including those among the states of the Americas. Given existing close economic, cultural, social and political ties among these countries, we hope at the Santa Fe conference of 2010, to consider what past transformations have meant and what these transformations may mean for the people, cultures, governments, of economies of this region. This issue will affect us all across many dimensions, and we welcome paper proposals that are equally varied across the disciplines. For the formal Call for Paper and application deadlines, please check the SCOLAS website (http://www.baylor.edu/SCOLAS/) or look for our mailed Call for Papers in early September.
