Major of the Month:  Art History

Texas State students pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in Art History develop a “foundation of knowledge in the history of art and visual culture, its methodologies, and its active relationship to broader social and historical frameworks.” Besides courses on art history and theory, students are also required to take introductory art studio courses to receive working knowledge of skills and techniques. Because students are taught to analyze and think critically, art history students gain valuable marketable skills such as critical thinking, problem solving, visual literacy, researching and interpreting skills, and oral and written communication skills. Sample job titles include: public relations specialist, art critic, layout editor, appraiser, cultural events planner, collections manager, and grant specialist.
