Decoding the Past

Would you like to explore the origins of ancient man; discover why our species survived when others did not? Dr. Britt Bousman, director of the Texas State University Center for Archeological Studies, along with a team of students and faculty are conducting research in South Africa to uncover the answers to these and other important questions. Be a part of the discovery. At Texas State, the world is your laboratory!