Contents

Contributors ............................................................................................................................................. V

Illustrations ................................................................................................................................................ VI

Introduction .............................................................................................................................................. 1
Lawrence E. Estaville, Texas State University; Edris J. Montalvo, Cameron University; and Fenda A. Akiwumi, University of South Florida

Part I. Ethnic Heritage
Chapter 1. “My Ethnic Identity” Writing Assignment
Susan E. Hume, Southern Illinois University Edwardsville ................................................................. 6

Chapter 2. Branching Out: Genealogy as Pedagogy in American Ethnic Geography
Joy K. Adams, American Honors ........................................................................................................... 11

Part II. Visualizing Ethnicity
Chapter 3. Visualization of Racial-Ethnic Geography in the Classroom
John W. Frazier, University of Binghamton (SUNY) ............................................................................ 18

Chapter 4. Ethnic Geography in Popular Films and Documentaries
Lawrence E. Estaville and Kanika Verma, Texas State University ......................................................... 31

Part III. Experiential Learning and Concepts for Conversations
Chapter 5. Ethnic Geography through Experiential Learning
Edris J. Montalvo, Cameron University ................................................................................................... 43

Chapter 6. On-campus and Local Community Cultural Events to Explore Ethnic Geography Themes
Kanika Verma, Texas State University .................................................................................................... 50

Chapter 7. Positionality in an Increasingly Diverse Society: Stimulating Conversation Across the Divide
Jay L. Newberry, Binghamton University (SUNY) .................................................................................. 57

Chapter 8. Toward a Pedagogy of Jim Crow: A Geographic Reading of The Green Book
Derek H. Alderman and Joshua Inwood, University of Tennessee ....................................................... 67
Part IV. Ethnic Markers and Field Studies

Chapter 9. Getting the Ball Rolling: Teaching Ethnic Geography through Sports Examples
Heike C. Alberts, University of Wisconsin—Oshkosh ..........................................................79

Chapter 10. Ethnicity Carved in Stone: Cemeteries as Learning Environments
Joy K. Adams, American Honors .................................................................86

Chapter 11. Understanding Ethnicity and Inequality through Fieldtrip Projects
Emily Skop, University of Colorado, Colorado Springs.........................................................93

Part V. International Ethnic Connections

Chapter 12. Ethnic Diversity in Courses on Environmental Conservation and Sustainable Development
Fenda A. Akiwumi, University of South Florida.................................................................101

Chapter 13. Immigrant Interviews in Teaching Latin American Geography
Sarah A. Blue, Texas State University.................................................................107

Chapter 14. International Teaching Opportunities and Challenges: Migration and Settlement
Carlos Teixeira, University of British Columbia Okanagan.......................................113