The Caucasian Chalk Circle

Program Synopsis
This is a play within a play.

Act One: “The Noble Child”
The Governor and his wife are on their way to Easter Mass, when they meet the Fat Prince. We see Grusche greeted by Simon who reveals he has been watching her. The Singer continues the story as the coup against the Governor begins, led by the Fat Prince, and the Governor is quickly beheaded. Simon finds Grusche and proposes marriage by giving her his silver cross—of course, she accepts. Natella Abashvili, the Governor's wife, is carried off, away from the flaming city of Nuhka and inadvertently leaves her son, Michel, behind with Grusche.

Act Two: “Flight to the Northern Mountains”
At the beginning of this act, we see Grusche trying to escape to the mountains by disguising herself as a noblewoman. She is quickly found out and is forced on the road again, followed shortly by the Ironshirts. Grusche abandons Michel on a doorstep, but has mixed emotions about this. Then when she meets a perverted Corporal and Ironshirts who are looking for the child, Grusche is forced to knock the man out and grab Michel.

Act Three: “In the Northern Mountains”
Grusche wearily retreats to her brother's mountain farm. Lavrenti fabricates a story to his jealous wife Aniko. Grusche catches scarlet fever and lives there for quite some time. Lavrenti convinces Grusche to marry a dying peasant, Yussup. Yussup returns to "life," and it becomes clear he was only "ill" when it was still possible to be drafted by the military. The Governor's wife wants the child back and Grusche must go to court back in Nukha.

Act Four: “The Story of the Judge”
Azdak shelters a "peasant" who turns out to be the fugitive Grand Duke. Since Azdak thinks the rebellion is an uprising against the government itself, he turns himself in. Azdak makes jokes and amuses the Ironshirts enough that they appoint him judge.

Act Five: “The Chalk Circle”
We meet again Grusche and Natella Abashvili, the latter of whom comes into the court with two lawyers. The prosecution comes forth and liberally bribes Azdak in hopes of swinging the verdict. In order to decide who the real mother is, Azdak devises a circle-of-chalk test, where Michel is placed in the center and the women will then pull on him. After the test is completed, Azdak decides the fate of Michel.
