Dawn-what about open swim in mornings 8-10am. Where people come to swim and leave. Pickle ball? We are looking at avenues and what we can do and make this work? Hayden- is there a possibly opening a BB court maybe half premade party and have an assume risk waiver. Some details to work out as Covid steadily decline could be a possibility. Health and wellness task force. It's a great idea and work to make this happen as well with other sports as well. Outdoor yoga? Issue of timing and space available.

Cooksey, Grace-Erin R 10/21 1:57 PM

Hello. My name is Grace-Erin, I am a student that was chosen to help represent for group fitness. I just had a few questions/thoughts that I wanted to share on here, just incase anyone is interested.

1. Social media:

1. I think it would be really cool to have posts about each group fitness instructor. It could just be a quick video of them introducing themselves, saying what classes they teach, and maybe a little more information about them. It would also be neat if in that video there was some b-roll that showed them teaching the class. I think this would make newcomers more comfortable because 1. They would know what the instructor looks like and feel more connected going into class and 2. It would allow people know what that class actually looks like and what they can expect.

2. Nutrition Coaching:

1. I think the new Nutrition Coaching is also something that could be highlighted more on the social pages since it is new and many people may not be familiar with the premise.

2. Facility:

1. One thing I have noticed is that the racquetball courts are limited to 1 person but the functional training area allows 3 people. Is there any way the courts could be raised to 2 people? I've notice they are hardly used now. I personally know many people who took up racquetball last year and found it to be the most enjoyable way to exercise but now they can no longer do that unless they want to play alone, which isn't enjoyable for most of them. I understand that equipment can't be checked out but I think opening those spaces up to people who have their own equipment or just partner workouts (conducted from opposite sides of the room) could be a great thing to offer. If a sign up sheet was created, like the one for group fitness, where a waiver is signed saying they will social distance and continue wearing a mask, I think it could be equally, if not more, safe than having three people working out in the functional training area.

3. Group fitness schedule:

1. For next semester, I was wondering if it was possible to have the first few weeks of the new schedule to change around the times of the online classes to see what times are the most popular. I know it all depends on the schedule of the instructor but I felt like that might be something to consider.
