“Me, Myself, and I” presents a series of selections from a variety of different composers and a wide range of emotions. The only thing that each of these pieces have in common is that they speak about the concept of one’s self whether it be feeling alone, heartbroken from being left alone for someone else, or appreciating one’s self.

Rather than performing the program as individual pieces, I chose to take a different approach to this performance: making one full story out of the various and different pieces. With that being said, this “story” tells of how one can come out of the pit of depression and anxiety by simply loving yourself just a little bit more and appreciating life’s simplest things such as the feeling of remembering your home.

I do hope this performance inspires you to appreciate yourself even more and to take things a bit slower if needed. Thank you.
