This allowed all students who placed into developmental mathematics the opportunity to complete a credit bearing mathematics course in their first semester. Earlier completion of a credit bearing mathematics course has been shown to have a positive impact on degree completion and retention. A second item in this category is that during 2019-2020, the Department presented DFW rates for core classes, presented in a variety of statistical analysis formats, to each teaching forum and tasked them to find ways to improve.
