Nursing Students Train Cub Scouts

Two future nurses are already involved with future community leaders. On Friday, February 25, nursing students, Emily Gilman and Brittany Camp provided first aid training to local Cub Scouts Pack 145, Webelos, for their Readyman badge. Emily and Brittany used a high tech simulator called SimMan® to teach the Webelos how to apply a bandage on a wound, stabilize a hemorrhaging limb, treat a first-degree burn and call for 911. After watching a demonstration of the Heimlich maneuver on a choking victim by the nursing students, the Webelos took turns in demonstrating the Heimlich maneuver on their club master, Anthony Guardado. Josie Zamora, RN, CNS - Assistant Clinical Professor supervised the nursing students and Dr. Tiffany Holmes, Coordinator of the Simulation Lab, and Ryan Douglas, Simulation Lab Info Specialist, prepared the mannequins and lab for the educational event. Everyone had a great learning experience!
